EDITORIAL MISSION

The Migration Information Source, the bimonthly online immigration journal published by the Migration Policy Institute, provides fresh thought, authoritative data from numerous global organizations and governments, and global analysis of international migration and refugee trends. A unique online resource, the Source offers essential facts on the movement of people worldwide.

The New York Times praised the Source thusly: "Every moment has its magazine, and for the age of migration it is the Migration Information Source." Resource Shelf, a respected resource for librarians, researchers, and others selected the Source's "Frequently Requested Statistics on Immigrants and Immigration in the United States" article as its Resource of the Week in November 2009. The Source, which has close to 13,000 subscribers, has been nominated for a Webby award for Web Site excellence, selected as a Best of Reference by the New York Public Library, and commended by the US Census Bureau and Choice magazine.

The Migration Information Source is a project of MPI,¹ which is an independent, nonpartisan, nonprofit think tank dedicated to the study of people worldwide. For more information on MPI, please visit <http://www.migrationpolicy.org/about/index.php>.

E-NEWSLETTER PURPOSE

The newsletter sent out on the first of the month provides links to the latest articles (features, country profiles, etc.) plus "New Resources," a newsletter exclusive that tells readers about recently released migration research. The newsletter on the 15th leads with Policy Beat, a roundup of US immigration policy news, and also provides links to new articles.

Country profile
Emigration, Immigration, and Diaspora Relations in India
The world's second most populous country also has a vast diaspora spread across nearly every continent. Daniel Naujoks provides a broad overview of Indian migration flows and major populations worldwide, and discusses India's diaspora policies, refugees and asylum seekers from the region, and illegal immigrants from Bangladesh.

Policy Beat
Immigration Controversy Lands in the Middle of Health-Care Reform Debate
MPI's Muzaffar Chishti and Claire Bergeron report on immigrant provisions in current health-care reform legislation, ICE's plans to make detention more "civil," a small drop in the size of the US foreign-born population, and more.

Editor's Note
We have just added our 68th country profile: India (all profiles accessible from here).
Author Daniel Naujoks has done a fantastic job covering India's migration history, both

The profile is exciting on a personal level as well: I am one of millions of "persons of Indian origin." My father came to the United States in the 1960s as an engineering graduate student and stayed when a US company sponsored his permanent residence.

The India profile comes just as Indian ethnic communities worldwide prepare to celebrate Diwali, a Hindu festival of lights, this Saturday, October 17. During Diwali, families light earthen lamps (diyas) in their homes and seek the blessings of Lakshmi, the goddess of wealth. Of course, it is also a time to feast on special foods, give presents, and set off fireworks. Traditions vary from region to region.

Former US President George W. Bush celebrated Diwali in the White House for the first time in 2003. But the Indian press has happily noted that President Barack Obama attended a Diwali ceremony at the White House yesterday (see this article).

Have You Read

The Basics of E-Verify, the US Employer Verification System
Just a fraction of all US employers use E-Verify, a federal system that checks potential employees' immigration status and their eligibility to work. MPI's Marc Rosenblum explores E-Verify's history, how it works, and the arguments for and against it.

Transnational Migrants: When "Home" Means More Than One Country
Peggy Levitt of Wellesley College and Harvard University explains how migrants can belong to two or more societies and what this trend means for policymakers.
